

Page 7.

The Sun is a very big ball of burning gases. What happens to water when it is boiling? The water moves up and down and bubbles. The gases on the Sun also move up and down and bubble because the Sun is thousands of degrees hot.

The next picture shows the Sun. The texture inside the Sun represents flowing and bubbling gases.