The Sun is a very big ball of burning gases. At its center, temperatures are between 15 million and 18 million degrees Celsius. The Sun represents 99.8% of the total mass of the solar system. The next picture shows the surface of the Sun.